Course Description

We may all confront issues that directly impact how much we can deduct. This course is designed for participants who want to explore and examine the tax consequences of medical costs, charitable contributions, and casualty and theft losses, especially in relation to their deductibility. The emphasis is examining a wide variety of situations related to these items and the extent to which they may or may not result in a deduction and what limitations on deductibility may be imposed.

Program Delivery Method: Self-Study (NASBA QAS Self-Study/interactive)

Subject Codes/Field of Study

Learning Assignment & Objectives

As a result of studying the assigned materials, you should be able to meet the objectives listed below.

ASSIGNMENT

At the start of the materials, participants should identify the following topics for study:

- * Deductions for medical costs
- * Health Savings Accounts
- * Health insurance for the self-employed
- * Limitations on charitable contributions
- * Contributions of cash
- * Contributions of property
- * Contributions of services
- * Substantiation
- * Casualty and theft losses
- * Disaster area losses
- * Losses on Deposits

Learning Objectives

After reading the chapter, participants will be able to:

1. Identify the various deductions related to medical costs by
 - a. Recognizing the differences between deductible and nondeductible items including the types of deductions for dependents; and
 - b. Specifying the basic characteristics of Health Savings Accounts (HSAs) noting the tax consequences of withdrawals from HSAs and determining self-employed health insurance.
2. Recognize the charitable contribution provisions, identify how contributions of cash, property, and services affect deductibility of contributions of the different types of charitable contributions, and specify the requirements related to substantiation.
3. Determine what constitutes casualty losses, theft losses, and losses on deposits and recognize the issues related to the deductibility of these losses.

After studying the materials, answer the exam questions 1 to 15.
