Preamble

"A Snapshot in Time"

To the amazement of many estate planning professionals, for most of 2010, the United States had no federal estate tax or generation-skipping transfer tax. A "modified carryover basis" regime was implemented to generally deny a step-up in the basis of appreciated assets at death. The federal gift tax remained in place with a $1 million exemption and a 35% maximum rate. However, this situation did not last.

On December 16, 2010, the Tax Relief, Unemployment Insurance Reauthorization, and Job Creation Act of 2010 ("TRUIRJCA") was passed by Congress, and later signed by the President on December 17, 2010. TRUIRJCA reinstated the estate and generation-skipping transfer taxes effective for decedents dying and transfers made after December 31, 2009. The estate tax applicable exclusion amount was $5 million in 2011 under TRUIRJCA and was indexed for inflation for decedents dying in calendar years after 2011, and the maximum estate tax rate was 35 percent. For gifts made in 2010, the applicable exclusion amount for gift tax purposes was $1 million, and the gift tax rate was 35%. For gifts made after December 31, 2010, the gift tax was reunified with the estate tax, with the same applicable exclusion amount and the top estate and gift tax rate was 35%. However, in the case of a decedent who died during 2010, TRUIRJCA allowed the executor of such a decedent's estate to elect to apply the Internal Revenue Code as if the new estate tax and basis step-up rules had not been enacted.

In 2013, the American Tax Relief Act ("ATRA") permanently increased the top estate, gift, and GST rate from 35% to 40% for transfers over the applicable exemption (or exclusion) amount. ATRA kept the exemption at $5,000,000 as indexed for inflation since 2011. The TCJA has recently doubled the exemption and it was $11,700,000 for 2021.

Planning for these and other changes is still unsettled. As a result, the student is warned that my observations, comments, and the following text are preliminary and will undoubtedly be refined later.

Good Luck!
